I am deeply honoured and delighted as well to announce the publication of the Vol. 4, Issue No.2 of Brainwave: A Multidisciplinary Journal, published by Brainware University, West Bengal, India.

All the submitted articles have been peer reviewed by reviewers of eminence in the concerned areas. Accordingly, I am hopeful that the contributions of the authors in this issue will not only enrich the present researchers but also generate scope for future research. Regarding publication in this Journal, we accept only those articles which possess novel ideas, surfacing high impact research. Probably, this may be the reason why number of authors submitting the papers for favour of publication in our Journal is getting increased day by day.

It is also a great pleasure to extend my indebtedness to the members of the editorial board and honourable reviewers for their contributions regarding the betterment of the quality of publications. I am also thankful to other concerned stakeholders who ensured timely publication of this issue. Further, I take this opportunity to congratulate the authors for their excellent contributions.

Finally, it is relevant to mention in this context that the priority of the Journal is to publish novel contributions from authors in different areas.
